

Disc Dogs!

THE COMPLETE GUIDE

Dogs naturally love to run, chase, and grab things with their mouths. For a canine, no activity is more healthy or satisfying than chasing and catching a flying disc. And, the best news of all is that almost any dog can participate in the fun!

In the backyard or at a nearby park, pet owners worldwide are discovering that ten minutes of canine disc play is more fun and better exercise for a canine than an hour-long walk.

In Disc Dogs! The Complete Guide, authors Peter Bloeme and Jeff Perry, the world's foremost experts in canine disc sports, share the tips, techniques, and training methods that made them World Champions. This information-packed resource also features an insider's look at the exciting and rewarding world of canine disc competition.

In whatever form you choose to enjoy it, canine disc play is not only fun for your dog, it also provides mental and physical challenges that will help your pet feel that it is living a full and productive life.

The shared activity of canine disc play creates and fosters a special bond of friendship and mutual respect that will take your relationship with your pet to an entirely new level.

World Champions Peter Bloeme and Jeff Perry have been involved in canine disc sports for more than three decades and have given tens-of-thousands of dog lovers their introduction to this addictive and life-changing family activity and sport that dog lovers of all ages can enjoy. The duo founded Hyperflite Flying Discs and patented the revolutionary K-10 flying disc — the first disc in history designed exclusively for canine competition.
